BEFORE IT SHIPS. →

TWO BILLS, ONE ANNOUNCEME NT

On September 18, Rep. Josh Gottheimer (D-NJ), Co-Chair of the House AI Commission, introduced two bipartisan AI security bills at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck.

NO MANDATORY AI SAFETY CHECKS EXIST TODAY

Gottheimer introduced the American AI Security Act and the China FIREWALL Act to fill that gap.

“

“Right now, there are no mandatory requirements for pre-deployment testing of frontier AI models. That doesn't work in banking, it doesn't work in food safety, it doesn't work in medicine, and it sure as hell shouldn't work with the technology that experts say could help

NSA GETS 30 DAYS TO VET A MODEL

Under the American AI Security Act, the NSA would get full access to evaluate any covered model before release. Companies could appeal decisions through an expedited process.

30 days

Plus one 30-day extension if needed

OTHER CHINESE AI IS ALREADY WALKING IN

DeepSeek is already blocked from federal devices. The China FIREWALL Act would extend that ban to other Chinese open-weight models. Gottheimer named Kimi K3 and Qwen as models still on federal systems.

GOTTHEIMER IS ALSO PRESSING THE WHITE HOUSE

He is sending a letter to National Cyber Director Sean Cairncross asking whether the administration's AI cybersecurity clearinghouse is built for today's threats, including autonomous AI-driven cyberattacks.

A VOTE ISN'T SCHEDULED

Gottheimer said Republican leadership has refused to bring AI safety legislation to the floor. He is calling on the Speaker to reconvene Congress before the election. Near-term action is unlikely.
